Raise awareness on the importance of complying & implementing the EN-ISO 3834

European and International Standards are a guarantee of quality for the manufacturing industry, purchasing departments of companies, individual professionals and final consumers.

A competitive and successful company has to comply and be permanently updated with several requirements both at European and international level.

The international standard ISO 3834 defines the adequate quality requirements for metallic welded products and consequently enhances the manufacturing company's ability to face the challenges of domestic and global market.

The professional qualification and certification of people involved in the management and control of welding process are a key aspect for the good implementation of ISO 3834.

QWS-ISO 3834 is a Leonardo da Vinci Project, co-funded by the European Commission under the Lifelong Learning Programme that involves organisations from 5 European countries: Spain, Portugal, Romania, Poland and Bulgaria

The project intends to raise awareness of implementing the standard ISO 3834 "Requirements for Quality Welding by Fusion Metallic Materials" in order to:

- Remove technical barriers to trade in the field of construction products and to enhance their free movement in the internal market
- Ensure that the declaration of performance for a product is reliable and consistent
- Have a welding quality management system
- Improve the competence of personnel responsible for welding coordination activities
- Prevent disasters
